ASSIGNMENTS OF ERROR

1. The Circuit Court erred when it entered judgment for Woods on claims that are based on promissory estoppel, because the Virginia Supreme Court has held that there is no cause of action based on promissory estoppel in Virginia.

2. The Circuit Court erred when it entered judgment for Woods on the theory of quantum meruit, because Woods had an express employment contract for which he received a salary plus performance bonuses.

3. The Circuit Court erred when it entered judgment for Woods in the amount of $115,172.57 on a theory of quantum meruit, because there is no evidence in the record as to the reasonable value of the services Woods rendered, and no evidence in the record to support any reimbursement of farming costs to Woods.

4. ASSIGNMENT OF CROSS-ERROR: The Circuit Court was plainly wrong in finding that Woods' quantum meruit relief began in 1996 because its basis for using 1996 as a starting date was unsupported by the evidence.
